

CONTENTS

From the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology and Logistics

2 What Lies Ahead Frank Kendall

6

Crisis Leadership Roy Wood, Ph.D.

In any crisis, a leader must first assess and stabilize the situation as quickly as possible.

10 Risky Business Why DoD Needs a New Risk Management Paradigm Thomas H. Miller

Don't sugarcoat or mask risk. Risk management should be forward-looking and focus on mitigating future negative events rather than managing them after they occur.

14 OSD's Obligation and Expenditure Rate Goals Robert L. Tremaine and Donna J. Seligman

Factors that could undermine program execution are examined in a search for ways to further DoD financial goals.

22 Are You Ready for an International Program? Brian Schultz

In today's dynamic environment, every acquisition program potentially is an international program.

28 A Reliability Approach to Risk Assessments and Analysis of Alternatives (Based on a Ground-Vehicle Example)

Shawn P. Brady
A new approach has been developed for effectively analyzing programs' reliability risks.

34

Rolling Toward Better Buying Power 2.0 and Portfolio Management with the Joint Center for Ground Vehicles

Daniel Pierson

Gearing up on affordability requires higher, DoD enterprise-level use of the program executive officers' inherent chartered capability.

ALSO

46

Serve as You Lead

Art Greenlee

Service is the highest calling of leadership—to develop and motivate others and set an example.

42

Acquisition Reform—How Training Can Help

Ronald G. Joseph, DBA

Integrated training of government and contractors could help improve management within new budgetary constraints.

4

Kendall Kicks Off Better Buying Power 2.0

39

Performance-Based Logistics Only Part of the Answer to Controlling Costs

Steven Hurt and Alan Heckler

DoD design of support concepts for all weapon systems must be structurally assessed, and ideas can be found in the commercial world.
