Continuous Learning

The DoD AT&L Workforce is required to complete 80 hours of continuous learning every two years. To help meet that need, DAU offers a wide variety of continuous learning modules on many topics. We are constantly adding modules to keep the workforce abreast of changes in policy.

Consulting, Rapid Deployment Training, and Targeted Training

Our Performance Support services are provided to DoD and civilian agencies to help them resolve individual project and agency-level acquisition problems. We also provide immediate training on new policy initiatives and training targeted at an organization's unique needs. For more information, visit http://www.dau.mil/performance_support

Knowledge Sharing

DAU hosts the AT&L Knowledge Sharing System (AKSS) and the Acquisition Community Connection (ACC). AKSS is the central gateway for all AT&L resources and information. ACC is the collaborative arm with a variety of communities of practice. Visit <https://akss.dau.mil>

Harvard ManageMentor 10

A partnership between Defense Acquisition University and Harvard Business School Publishing

The Defense Acquisition University and Harvard Business School Publishing have partnered to offer Harvard ManageMentor 10 (HMM 10) to the DoD AT&L Workforce as a continuous learning resource.

What is HMM 10?

HMM 10 is an easy-to-use online performance-support tool that provides information and materials on more than 40 topics fundamental to management and leadership success. Topics range from running an effective meeting or managing a project to tasks such as negotiating or keeping a team on target.

Who can register for HMM 10?

More than 40 HMM 10 modules are available to the entire DoD AT&L Workforce, select members of the private sector who have attended DAU courses, and students who receive training through the Federal Acquisition Institute/DAU partnership.

Where can I access HMM 10?

Visit the DAU Continuous Learning Center at <http://clc.dau.mil> and follow the registration links for Harvard ManageMentor.

DAU is providing HMM 10 to:

- Offer the most appropriate and compelling content available
- Address skills directly corresponding to job functions and competencies
- Develop management and leadership skills as core competencies among the workforce
- Provide a broad and consistent knowledge base across the workforce
- Provide continuous learning opportunities to the AT&L workforce

Learn. Perform. Succeed.
